

Compass explores the persistent moral and social questions central to the human experience – what is value, merit, truth, justice, citizenship, a good society, and more – through active debate; collective engagement with historical and contemporary thinkers in the humanities, arts, and social sciences; and multidisciplinary conversation with engineering and the sciences.

21.01 Compass (CI-H, HASS-E)
compass.mit.edu
Fall 2025

What do we value? What do we know? What do we owe each other?